Bringing frontier AI to the frontlines

Today, we're proud to announce xAI For Government – a suite of frontier AI products available to United States Government customers.

xAI's mission is to create and propagate AI tools to assist humanity in our quest for understanding and knowledge. Supporting the critical missions of the United States Government is a key part of this mission – bringing the best tools and technologies available in the commercial world to our hard-working public servants.

Americans have led the world through all of society's great technological innovations, and AI will be no exception. xAI is proud to continue this legacy – which is why we are the only company building on this legacy here in the US and turning shovels into tokens.

Under the umbrella of xAI For Government, we will be bringing all of our world-class AI tools to federal, local, state, and national security customers. These customers will be able to use the Grok family of products to accelerate America – from making everyday government services faster and more efficient to using AI to address unsolved problems in fundamental science and technology.

We've been engaging closely with innovators and leaders in the government to make sure that our offerings are able to deliver the capabilities we need. In addition to our commercial offerings, we will be making some unique capabilities available to our government customers, including:

- Custom models for national security and critical science applications available to specific customers.
- Forward Deployed Engineering and Implementation Support, with USG cleared engineers
- Custom AI-powered applications to accelerate use cases in healthcare, fundamental science, and national security, to name a few examples
- Models soon available in classified and other restricted environments
  - Partnerships with xAI to build custom versions for specific mission sets

We are especially excited to announce two important milestones for our US Government business – a new $200M ceiling contract with the US Department of Defense, alongside our products being available to purchase via the General Services Administration (GSA) schedule. This allows every federal government department, agency, or office, to access xAI's frontier AI products.

America is the world leader in AI, and this is in no small part due to a tradition of innovation and strong investments in engineering and science. We're excited to contribute back to the country that made xAI uniquely possible here.

We're also seeking talented mission driven engineers who want to join the cause. If you're excited by solving hard problems to empower our nation's hardest workers, we'd love to hear from you. Reach out to us over email or apply online directly here. We'd love to hear from you.
